"Draw the Circle Wide" Stewardship Campaign Kickoff Oct. 27th & Congregational Meeting

Sunday, Oct. 27th will mark the official kickoff of the annual Stewardship Campaign for pledging of our time, talents and resources. This year's theme is "Draw the Circle Wide."

Stewardship Committee Chairperson Janet Hansel will introduce the campaign. She will encourage folks to register their interests in participating in the various committees and activities of the church in an online survey. Hard copies of the 2025 Stewardship Visitor will be available for congregants to take home.

At the annual Fall Congregational Meeting following worship Treasurer Brian Baker will provide an up-to-date summary of FBC finances and our 2025 financial pledge goal will be announced.

Pure Joy! Amy Aittama and Bill Staffeld dance to music during their Guatemalan cross-cultural trip.

Resource Committee Readies First Baptist for Winter

Kudos to the Resource Committee who, over the past several months, has overseen completion of several sustainability projects to prepare the church for the impending cold weather and for the future.

The projects include: a new heat pump system that is now heating and cooling the kitchen, office, library community room, nursery and upstairs offices and rooms. The church will receive $170,035 incentive rebates for the project and hopes to soon be able to repay its outstanding $120,000 loans from members.

Our old boiler has been removed and two new units have been installed and were used to heat the sanctuary during the Oct. 13th service. The heat is set for 68 degrees in the Sanctuary and 58 degrees in other areas.

The church tower has new slates and the tower and South door stone work has been pointed.

Many thanks go to the 20 worker bees that showed up on Work Day, Oct 5th, to tackle the nuts and bolts of cleaning First Baptist. They included: Marlene Sack, Judy Kennison, Linda and David Caughey, Kris Scott, Anne and Steve Farrell, Carolyn Young, Charlie Gerber, Carrie Stearns, Debbie Allen, Amy Doyle and Craig Riecke,, Barb Fry, Lou Carlucci, Linda Nicholson, Amanda and Curt Ufford, Cindi Zorokong, and Josie Zanfordino.

Two new boiler units have been installed in First Baptist's basement and are working.

First Baptist Church in Ithaca is a nurturing and inclusive community. Guided by Jesus' Teachings, we strive for Social & Ecological Justice and embrace the Baptist tradition of Bible, Soul, Church and Religious Freedoms.

"Before a National Election"

Prayer of Reverend Peter Marshall (1902-1949)
Chaplain of the United States Senate.

LORD Jesus, we ask Thee to guide the people of this nation as they exercise their dearly bought privilege of franchise. May it neither be ignored unthinkingly nor undertaken lightly. As citizens all over this land go to the ballot boxes, give them a sense of high privilege and joyous responsibility.

Help those who are about to be elected to public office to come to understand the real source of their mandate – a mandate given by no party machine, received at no polling booth, but given by God; a mandate to govern wisely and well; a mandate to represent God and truth at the heart of the nation; a mandate to do good in the name of Him under whom this Republic was established.

We ask Thee to lead America in the paths where Thou wouldst have her walk, to do the tasks which Thou hast laid before her. So may we together seek happiness for all our citizens in the name of Him who created us all equal in His sight, and therefore brothers (& sisters). Amen.

Building Bridges Across Divides

Message delivered by Linda Nicholson during worship on October 6, 2024

Linda Nicholson

I occasionally watch a children's show called Stillwater on Apple TV on my iPhone. Stillwater is a giant panda who lives next door to a family with 3 kids. In each episode, one of the kids will come over to see him when they're upset about something, and he will listen, respond with seemingly infinite empathy, and then ask, "would you like to hear a story?" They always say yes, and he shares a parable that invokes in the child some perfectly relevant insight that helps them see their situation in a positive light. He shows them something they never thought about, it shifts their perspective, and empowers them. I always feel good at the end of each Stillwater episode. It's like spending time with the Universal Jesus Christ embodied in a giant panda.

We're in the midst of some troubled times, aren't we? This morning we mark 30 days before the presidential election. Tomorrow we will mark the one-year anniversary of the brutal attack by Hamas on Israel and the beginning of the brutal and continuing response of Israel on Gaza, and now on Hezbollah. Turmoil continues across the globe. There is so much fear and division in our everyday world right now, all in the backdrop of the existential crisis of climate change. It's a lot to process, to cope with. So much so, that it might make us want to pull back into a place where we feel most secure, most protected, and most safe. It can be a challenge to not feel afraid these days.

Would you like to hear a story?

This is actually a true story, not a parable, but I think it serves the intended purpose, which is to empower us with love and hope when we find ourselves filled with fear.

Thirty years ago, I moved to Ithaca and settled into a home in the most amazing neighborhood. My neighbors love and take care of each other, and it is a community where folks feel safe. It's a place where I always felt safe until one day, suddenly, I didn't. The house next door to me is a 3-bedroom rental and every 2-5 years neighbors move out and new neighbors move in. Several years ago, a middle-aged couple moved in. At first it was just this one couple, but pretty soon their daughter and her 3 young kids moved in, and then a little bit later their son and his 2 young kids moved in. There was a lot going on next door. One afternoon I was sitting on my front porch reading, and suddenly hysterical blood curdling screams were coming from next door --- it sounded like a woman was being killed. Before I could think, I found myself banging on their front door, yelling "stop, open the door, stop!" The door opened, and by the scene inside it was apparent that the son and his middle-aged mom had been in an elevated altercation. I made some assumptions, and I said some things, primarily to the son, including an emotional threat to call the police. The mother assured me that everything was OK, she was OK, and it would never happen again. I mentioned resources they could connect with, and she said they would. Shaking, I went back home.

It was a presidential election year, and I had a sign on my front window showing my support for one of the presidential candidates. A couple of days after this altercation I came home from work to find my sign torn into pieces in my driveway. I was stunned. My neighbors from across the street saw me staring at the torn pieces in my hands and came out to tell me they had seen the son next door do it, and that he had appeared to be very angry. A gut-wrenching fear gripped me, and I reacted. I had an alarm system installed in my home, I made sure my locks were secure, and I set up a box of things I could throw or swing at an intruder that I kept next to my bed. Although I was very "defended", I did not sleep well. I was gripped by fear.

Then a few weeks later, in the wee hours of the morning, I awoke to a flashing red light outside in the street. From my bedroom window I saw that my next-door neighbor's yard was illuminated by a flood light from an ambulance parked in front of their

Guatemalan Cross-Cultural Trip Enriches Participants

Sponsored by First Baptist Church, 16 youth and adults visited Guatemala from June 27 to July 9th to learn about and experience the culture of Guatemala and to build relationships with folks at the mission at San Lucas Tolimán. Travelers included the Ward-Aittama family (Laura, Amy, Addy, Bay & Kai), the Wolfer family (Beth, Matt, Larissa & Evan), the Sanford family (Heather, Sarah, Arabella & Julia), Andrea and Bill Staffeld and Mariette ?. During their Guatemalan sojourn, the group learned about the rich, but turbulent and complex history of the Mayan people, and the community development work of the Mission. They participated in the Mission's programs including sewing, weaving and cooking activities at the Women's Center; the education program that provides preschool through 6th-grade education to over Mayan 600 students; the construction program which builds block, wood, and hybrid homes, and fuel-efficient stoves for local residents. The construction program also oversees all major Mission remodeling projects and any special construction projects that the Mission undertakes. Other focuses of the San Lucas Tolimán Mission is to provide quality healthcare for San Lucas and the surrounding communities residents with a hospital and a Health Promoter and Charity With Dignity programs that provides emergency assistance to community members in the greatest need.

Missions of FBC Committees

From the 2023 Bylaws

ECOLOGICAL JUSTICE:

Its mission is to guide the Church to be stewards of the earth within the Church community and beyond. This includes leadership in environmental projects, educational programs, and worship. The Committee will also provide input to other committees on environmentally sound practice for building projects and maintenance.

EDUCATION:

Its mission is to plan and coordinate all the Church's educational programs, including Sunday School for all ages and youth and children's activities.

HOSPITALITY & NURTURE:

Its mission is to create an atmosphere of inclusion and to promote community by organizing regular Church gatherings and special events and celebrations.

RESOURCE:

Its mission is to oversee facilities, finances, and personnel. The Committee cares for the Church's physical assets, arranges for routine maintenance and repairs, plans and executes capital improvement projects.

SERVICE AND SOCIAL JUSTICE:

Its mission is to promote the flow of God's all-inclusive love through the Church and into the world. This Committee coordinates service, outreach, and actions to address social injustice and support needs within the local community and beyond.

WELCOME AND OUTREACH:

Its mission is to reach out, welcome, and introduce persons into FBC's community of faith. The Committee coordinates the Church's creative engagement within the larger community. It recruits and trains greeters/ushers and coordinates visitor follow up in collaboration with the Pastor.

WORSHIP, MUSIC, & SPIRITUAL LIFE:

In collaboration with the Pastor and the music staff, its mission is to create rich worship experiences that inspire deeper spiritual connections. It arranges and sets-up monthly communion services and offers special programs that enhance the spiritual life of the Church.

Would you like to volunteer to help on one of these committees? Please indicate on the 2025 Stewardship Time and Talents online survey.

Pollinator Garden Delights and Propagates

A Garden Update by Louise Mudrak October 13, 2024

Our Pollinator Garden is flourishing with its beautiful tapestry of myriad colors, textures and sounds. It is buzzing, fluttering and muttering. The flowers are filled with many native bee species collecting pollen. In lucky moments we see butterflies nectaring and hear the flutter of birds coming to eat seeds. And during gardening sessions, we hear the soft mutterings of the gardeners who talk with each other and enjoy connecting with the plants and animals. Grounded in faith, we gather in gratitude and share joy. Sometimes it feels like a body prayer.

Our garden propagation effort began in the fall of 2022 when FBC gardeners assisted children (with Meg Gillard's help) and adults harvest seeds produced by the native plants in the garden. The seeds were labeled in four-inch pots, placed in a cold frame, and overwintered right in the FBC Garden. Other seeds and seedlings were harvested and overwintered in a cold frame at the "FBC Garden Nursery Annex" (Louise Mudrak's fenced garden). The seed germination rate was impressive! During the 2023 growing season, native plant sprouts were "edited" out of the garden, potted up, and grown at the Nursery Annex. This process continued through the 2024 growing season culminating in gifting plants to people who will continue to grow them. In the past month, FBC native plants have helped us support the native plant gardening efforts of: The First Unitarian Society of Ithaca's Garden; local school programs including TST BOCES at Newfield Farm to School; Northeast Elementary and 10 FBC congregants with plants for their home gardens

End-of-Summer FBC Picnic at Taughannock State Park

September 1st, the second First Baptist picnic and worship service this summer at Taughannock State Park was graced with beautiful weather.

Following worship, the Hospitality Committee provided hamburgers and hot dogs for the dish-to-pass picnic in the pavilion.

Who Is Linda Nicholson?

Linda Nicholson, a longtime member and a former Moderator of First Baptist Church is a Professor of Molecular Biology and Genetics and the Hays & James M. Clark Director, Office of Undergraduate Biology at Cornell University. Linda joined Cornell's faculty in 1994. For the past decades, her research focus has been to ascertain the biophysical properties of proteins critical for biological processes ranging from plant growth to Alzheimer's disease.

In 2013, Nicholson mentored the first Chicago Posse scholars who studied at Cornell.¹ One Posse alumni Gabriela Zamora said, "She truly is our mom on campus. She drove us places, she picked us up, she encouraged us to keep trying. We all struggled, especially our first year. Without her, we would not be standing here." "Serving as faculty mentor for Cornell's first Posse cohort ... gave me the gift of seeing the undergraduate experience through the eyes of brilliant and resilient Posse scholars who have become a part of my chosen family," reflects Linda.

Linda was honored for her contributions as teacher, research scientist and service to the community with the distinguished 2023 Faculty Award for Excellence in Research, Teaching and Service through Diversity, an award that recognizes faculty for their sustained and transformational work promoting diversity through research, teaching and service.

As the current Director of Undergraduate Biology, Linda assists undergraduates in one of the most popular majors at Cornell. Currently, she is engaged teaching biochemistry to 350 undergraduates with the help of a group of undergraduate teaching assistants who form study groups to help the undergraduates and four graduates teaching assistants. Her goal is to demystify biochemistry for those who were earlier traumatized by chemistry.

When not engaged in her multiple Cornell pursuits, Linda shares custody of two dogs Millie and Crash with her partner Lou Carlucci.

house. I crept downstairs and watched from the shadows of my front porch as the mother was brought out on a gurney, sitting up but rocking back and forth. I felt sick, assuming that the son had tried to kill her, and if I had just called the police before, this would not have happened. I went back in and prayed to God for guidance. I received a clear and immediate answer: "take them chicken". It was very specific: Chicken.

The next day I fixed one of my favorite chicken dishes, chicken thighs simmered in Campbell's cream of mushroom soup, and took it along with a large dish of green beans over to the family next door. The son, who was home alone, answered the door. Fighting the urge to flee, I said very simply, "I brought chicken". He looked at me, then at the food, then back at me, and then he started to cry. And then he asked me to come in. We sat in the kitchen as he explained through tears that his mom suffered from mental illness and had tried to take her life the night before. They weren't sure she was going to make it. He had been so angry with me for assuming he was abusing his mother, when he was struggling to help her. He apologized for ripping up my sign. I apologized for making assumptions. We hugged. And we became neighbors who through God's guidance and the power of comfort food became friends who sat down for conversations and checked in on each other and loved one another. His mom pulled through. When he applied for a college program, I wrote him a letter of recommendation. God knew what this young man needed. I sure didn't, but God absolutely did and filled my heart with an unexpected answer to my prayer for guidance. Take them chicken. And the outcome was miraculous.

Of course, not all divides can be bridged by chicken and green beans. We have an election coming up. We have a deeply divided nation, with both sides feeling like if the other side wins, it will be, um, quite awful. And, according to reports, at least some folks apparently feel that if the other side wins there will be reason for them to take violent action. The divides seem so overwhelming sometimes. But nothing, NOTHING, is too big for God. Everything in this world is a conduit for God's love, God's living waters, to flow through and out into the world. Friends, we have some work to do. There are folks out there who fear us! And we might fear those folks. We make assumptions about each other that can be so far from the truth.

So, what can we do? We could take the path of least resistance and hide away in our safest places to wait for the storm to hopefully pass. But what about the power of finding common ground? If we focus on what comes into our orbit as we walk through this world and know that God's love and joy and hope are there within everything and everyone, sometimes deeply hidden beneath protective layers but there, we can build bridges across any divides.

Here is an idea for all of us to consider: Seek God's guidance and watch for opportunities to step outside of your comfort zone to engage with someone who doesn't share your perspective. Meet them where they are, see them, and listen to them, because none of us sees the full picture until we listen to different perspectives. The goal is not to change someone's ideas and declare yourself right, but rather to create a comfortable and safe place to deepen our understanding of each other and fulfill God's commandment to love one another. When we ask for God's guidance, we will receive an answer --- it's not always what we expect, but when we trust in God's will rather than our own, all will be well. Thank you!

Linda's Chicken

6 chicken thighs (or whatever you prefer)	1 Tsp salt
1 package (8 oz) white mushrooms	1 tsp pepper
1 can Campbell's Cream of Mushroom Soup	½ cup white wine (optional) or water
½ cup flour

Add about ½ cup flour, 1 tablespoon salt and 1 teaspoon pepper into a bag (a large Ziploc works well, or a paper lunch sack). Add about 2 tablespoons of canola oil to a deep skillet over medium heat. Shake each piece of chicken in the bag until coated then place into skillet. Brown the chicken on both sides. Once browned, add the soup, mushrooms, and wine (or water). Simmer on low heat for about 1 hr.

Congolese Women Welcomed at FBC

Dear First Baptist Church,

Thank you for welcoming us. We are a group of women from Congo, who have made Syracuse our home after being forced to leave our villages and living in refugee camps. Some of us have been in the US for several years and some of us have arrived this past year.

We have formed a non-profit group COWVIA (Congolese Women, Vision, Integrity Action, Inc.). We support each other and work to make life better for everyone, especially to keep children safe from lead poisoning.

We have a celebration each year on International Women's Day and this year we wanted to have a summer adventure. Your church made that possible for us. On September 7th it rained most of the day, but we were blessed as we were able to cook in your kitchen a traditional feast and enjoy eating and visiting in your fellowship hall. Then the sun came out and we had a ride on the Discover Cayuga Lake boat.

Finally, thanks to Edie Reagan's suggestion, we hiked Ithaca Falls before we drove home. The beauty of the lake and the falls astounded us and made us very happy.

Thank you again for welcoming us to your church. We are grateful for you.

May You All be Blessed.

In Sanctuary Family Update

September 2024

From Anne Horst

Our sanctuary guest family, Jenny, Edgar, Greicy, and Fiorela are well and continue to work, learn, and give back to broader community.

Seeking Apartment - May 2025+

Generous members of FCCI stepped forward to volunteer their house to Jenny, Edgar, and the girls from early December through the end of April 2025. This is a wonderful act of kindness and generosity, and the family is ecstatic. Once their official work permits arrive (hopefully any day now), this offer of temporary free housing will allow Jenny and Edgar to save up money for renting an apartment of their own. We will be needing help in early December to move the family to their new temporary home - please reach out if you have access to a pickup truck and would be willing to help!

As we all know, affordable housing is hard to come by in the Ithaca area, and the family does not currently have a car. If you know of any affordable apartments in the Ithaca area that will be available starting next April, please reach out.

Minimum requirements: 2 bedrooms, a full bath, and kitchen privileges

Ideal locations: walkable to local resources or on a TCAT bus route.

They will apply for Section 8 housing when they are eligible, but the list is LONG and an interim solution will likely be needed. Thank you!

Kids Corner

Greicy and Fiorela are back in school, and enjoying the first full month. English language skills continue to show signs of improvement, and a FCCI youth member is becoming a practice partner for helping the process along.

Driving Practice

Edgar recently passed his NYS Driver's Permit test, and is eager to practice driving - he is a good driver (having driven for years in Peru), but needs to learn the meaning of the road signs in the US. Reach out if you'd like to go driving with Edgar!

Look for monthly updates, and please reach out to volunteer!

FBC Participates in Ithaca MobilePack

Again this year FBC youth and adults participated in the Ithaca MobilePack, an event that provides a unique volunteer experience to children, churches, synagogues, students, businesses, organizations, families, and individuals. Volunteers devote two hours of their time and money to pack meals to feed starving children. "Ithaca Is Generous" was coined as our community has lived up to that noble description by packing over 3 million meals. These meals are paid for through fundraising activities such as Beyond the Plate, an annual yard sale, concerts, t-shirt sales, and local faith congregation fundraisers. FMSC, founded in 1987, is a Christian non-profit organization that believes that hope starts with food. It welcomes any and all people to help, so that any and all people might eat. As millions of children die each year from preventable causes such as pneumonia, diarrhea, malaria and under nutrition and hunger is still causing nearly half of deaths in children under five years old, FMSC works with food distribution partners in nearly 70 countries staying with communities for the long haul, and empowering them to move from relief to development.
